Notre Dame Defeats Southern California Eleven

'ROUND 'N' 'ROUND

We got quite a kick out of an Oakland publication that recently carried a story and a picture about the new Ford plant being built in "Greater Oakland."

* * * *

There should be a law against that. No sooner does an industry locate in Richmond before San Francisco or Oakland claim it.

* * * *

First thing you know, and they will be claiming our inner harbor as a part of San Francisco or Oakland.

* * * *

Now, if we were located next to Los Angeles they'd annex us in a jump. And if we refused to be annexed, they'd think nothing of it and go ahead calling us a suburb of Los Angeles.

* * * *

Wouldn't be a bit surprised if Los Angeles would annex the Phillipine Islands, or Japan before many moons.

* * * *

One thing about Los Angeles however, one can give 'em credit—they don't want an inch—they want steen miles.

* * * *

One of these days there are are going to be enough street lights distributed in this town and then we're going to close up shop.

* * * *

In East Richmond, persons have to be able to pass the blindfold test before they walk home in the dark.

* * * *

One of these days some of these night workers (who can't afford to buy gasoline and have to walk) is going to break his neck while walking home and then he's going to sue the city.

* * * *

But then, again, one can't always get everything one wants.

Bob Cox, Richmond scout executive, last night invited the public to attend the Scout court of honor at Roosevelt junior high school auditorium on Monday night.

IRISH TRAMP ON TROJANS 27-0

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—UP—Notre Dame's football team completed its second consecutive season without defeat by scoring a smashing 27 to 0 victory over Southern California before a crowd of 90,000 persons here today.

Startling the crowd with a touchdown in the first six minutes of play, Notre Dame maintained its supremacy throughout a spectacular, but decidedly one-sided contest, in which Southern California's widely heralded offensive was tightly bottled up almost all day.

Southern California, which had rolled up the amazing total of 382 points in nine previous games, was thrown on the defensive in the first minute of play, and the Trojans had to fight with their backs to the wall, through the remainder of the game.

80 Yard March

Taking the opening kick-off, Notre Dame marched 80 yards down the field to Southern California's 20-yard line in ten plays before the Trojans halted the march.

Southern California stopped Notre Dame's attack at this point, however, and took the ball on downs on its own 20 yard line.

On the first play, however, Williamson, Southern California center, made a bad pass. The ball hit Jim Musick's leg, and bounded toward the line of scrimmage. Culver, Notre Dame's big left tackle recovered the ball on the 20 yard line.

Southern California called time out to gather its forces for a goal line stand.

Long Pass

The Trojan defense moved in close to stop Notre Dame's running attack. Frank Carideo, who closed out a remarkable collegiate

Student Speakers

HIGH CLUBS AT SESSION

Delegates from nine high schools of northern California yesterday afternoon gathered at the annual International club Christmas party given at Richmond Union High school. The local high school International club acted as host to the visiting delegates.

A business meeting presided over by Howard Bowker of Roosevelt High school of Oakland preceded the party.

The party opened with the presentation of a program by four high school International clubs. Richmond Union High school presented the second act of "The Bird's Christmas Carol." The members of the cast were: Elva Plouff, Olga Mahomed, Virginia Thole, Christina Coleman, Milton Belway, Donald Follett John McAndrews, and William McCloskey. Miss Dorothy Cox and Darrow Sutton directed the play.

Alameda High school presented a Spanish dance while a one-act play dealing with Turkey was given by University High school. An Apache dance was offered by the pupils of Longfellow Junior high school of Richmond.

Following the program in the Richmond Union high school auditorium, the delegates adjourned to the cafeteria, where dinner was served and dancing was enjoyed. Harmon Jatta, president of the Richmond International club, presided during the program and dinner.

The party was held under the direction of Miss Dorothy Cox, faculty adviser of the Richmond Union high school International club. The party attracted delegates from all parts of the northern part of the state, International club members even being present from Modesto, Sepastopol and Chico.

SPEAKERS FOR GRADUATION SELECTED

The honor of being commencement speakers for the Richmond Union High school graduating class of December 1930 next Wednesday evening has been given to Earnest Peters and Walter Thomas.

Peters will speak on "Education and Leisure," while Walter Thomas 'subject will be "The Westward March." Both boys are members of the present graduating class and were chosen from a field of competing student speakers.

Both Peters and Thomas have been distinguished in scholastics and student affairs at Richmond Union High school. Thomas has been president of the high school Students' association, is president of the senior class, and possesses the platinum pin of the high school Honor society, the highest scholastic honor that can be awarded at Richmond High. Peters has been a member of the Honor society and has been prominently identified with student activities.

There will also be a musical program presented by the members of the graduating class during the commencement exercises Wednesday evening. Saxophone solos will be offered by Russel Ralston, while a senior chorus will sing during the program. The members of the chorus are: Virginia Giegoldt, Gertrude Richards, Stirling Kitchen, Margeurite Godman, Myrtle Thomas, Eva Sorenson, Eldon Vestal, Martin Crabb, Edwin Brooks and Edward Harlow. At the close of the exercises the entire class will sing their school and class songs.

The class of December 1930 will be presented by Principal B. X. Tucker while the diplomas will be presented to the graduates by Ralph Bergen, president of the high school board. The invocation will be given by Rev. F. Carl Schmidt of the Pinole-Hercules Community church.

The Richmond Union High school orchestra will play during the evening under the direction of George Morris.

The entire main floor of the Richmond Union High school auditorium will be reserved until eight o'clock for persons holding invitations.

POISON FOG LIFTS IN EUROPE

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Dec. 6.—UP—A vast mantle of mist, cold and unprecedentedly thick as it lay over most of northern Europe, was lifting slowly tonight, after bringing about some three-score deaths in Belgium's quiet little valley of the Meuse.

The straggling villages along the river valley where the suffocating fingers of fog blotted out the sun and carried death to between 50 and 60 persons over a 40-mile area, were still dazed and bewildered as physicians treated scores who narrowly escaped the fatal touch and police attempted to make an accurate check of the dead.

An official announcement by the ministry of health, said the total number of dead was sixty. The ministry announced that inquiries had revealed fog, aggravating cases of lung and heart trouble, had caused the deaths.

They did not understand, nor did the continent's most famous doctors fully comprehend the strange wave of deaths in the darkness of the opaque mist which had hidden the factories and the mine pits of Beraing, Engis, Jemeppe, Flemalle, Havre Flemalle, Grande and other towns in the valley for five days.

The fog—through which they could see only a few feet—settled over the valley and, after a few days the bodies were found dead in the fields and reports of the deaths of many times the normal daily toll of villagers began to circulate.

Terror spread as some men and women who had escaped the first effects of the fog by a narrow margin went to hospitals for treatment. Some of the villagers

LIGHTED CHRISTMAS TREES ARE PLACED ON MACDONALD AVE.

Lighted Christmas trees on electric poles along Macdonald avenue from Sixth to Eleventh streets gave the business section of Richmond an appearance of the Yule season today, as the Merchants association prepared to extend the decorations further along the street.

Tuesday live Christmas trees eight feet in height will be placed six to the block from Fourth to Sixteenth streets. Seventy-two live Christmas trees will deck the avenue during the Christmas season.

The live trees will be furnished by the Inman nursery.

Limited funds forbid the Merchants association from extending the line of trees further this year, but it is hoped that more trees will be added each year until Macdonald avenue from First to Twenty-third is decked in the greenery, Clark Bargar, persident of the association announced last night.

The committee assisting Bargar in arranging for the display of trees is Ernest Marcus, Fred Newsom and Clint Smith. The live Christmas trees will not be lighted, but will present a pretty appearance, it was said last night.

Placing of the live trees is in line with the policy endorsed by Lions International clubs, which sponsors the movement started in recent years.

SCOUTS PLANT YULE TREE

Boy Scouts of Troop No. 10 did their good turn for the city when they planted a living Christmas tree yesterday afternoon at the Grant school.

The troop, which is sponsored by the Lions club, will decorate the tree for the living Christmas tree program planned by the Lions.

At the ceremonies yesterday, A. J. Furrer, president of the Lions, A. C. Faris, secretary and George Upham, chairman of the tree committee of the club were the speakers.

Senior Patrol Leader M. Garoutte was in charge of the ceremonies.

VETS TO MEET AT MARTINEZ

MARTINEZ, Dec. 6.—More than 500 Veterans of Foreign Wars are expected to assemble here Jan. 11 for the fifth district's convention, at which S. S. Ripley of Richmond will be commander.

The fifth district includes Alameda, Contra Costa, Solano counties. A parade, and a 58 piece veterans band and program, in addition to initiation ceremonies will be part of the day's feature.

Sidney Severns post of this city will be hosts during the convention which will be preceded by a dance Jan. 10.

NINE SAVED BY U.S. SHIP

SAN DIEGO, Dec. 6.—UP—Nine members of an ill-fated yachting party marooned Nov. 30 when the motor-ship Eola was wrecked on the northeast coast of Guadalupe Island, 220 miles south of here, tonight were being returned here by the U. S. S. destroyer, Arron Ward.

The party was rescued late today when the airplane carrier Langley, searching for the lost fishing smack Fidelity, sighted the wreckage of the yacht.

A partial list of the rescued included the commander, Captain L. Sayers, and gave as passengers, S. F. Frisbee, Anna, Lucille and Hazel Frisbee, Mrs. Marie Johnson, J. M. McFate and H. R. Tiffany. No addresses were available.

The party was picked up by the U. S. S. Langley, which sighted the wreckage of the yacht on the north shore of Guadalupe. All members of the yachting expedition were saved, it was stated. They were taken aboard the Langley, which was bringing them into San Diego.

The Langley sighted the stranded yacht while participating in a widespread search for the Fidelity, believed lost with eleven men aboard during severe storms two weeks ago.

Accompanied by nine destroyers and a fleet of 30 airplanes, the Langley steamed out of San Diego at dawn today in an effort to pick up the fishing boat.

The ships were covering a 50 mile front and steaming toward the Guadalupe Islands in the belief that ocean currents might have carried the Fidelity southward. They had found no trace of the small seiner when the Langley picked up the yachting group.

The Eola left Los Angeles harbor November 26.

DEATH CALLS PIONEER HERE

Death last night claimed another pioneer of Richmond.

Mrs. Effie Harriett Perry, died at the home of her daughter. Mrs. Harry Ells, 2632 Cutting boulevard at the age of 79 years.

For 40 years Mrs. Perry had lived in this district and for 50 years she resided in California.

Mrs. Perry was born in Bucksport. Me. Her father was Capt. John Bray, a famous seaman of his time. Many times the daughter accompanied her father on ocean voyages, sailing to many ports of the world. She travelled extensively with her father until she was eighteen years of age.

She married Perry, her father's first mate, in London, England. The couple then came to California, where they made their home in Fort Bragg.

Forty years ago she came to Richmond and made her home here. She has been living with her daughter, Mrs. Ells, for the past 20 years.

Besides her daughter, she leaves a sister, Mrs. Lottie Frederick, of Santa Barbara.

PHIL JONES ILL

Wasn't Flood; Just Testing Fire Hydrants

If Richmond motorists driving down Macdonald avenue last night struck huge pools of water between Twenty-second and Twenty-third street, don't think there was a big rain storm or flood.

There wasn't. Instead, employes of the Eastbay Utility District were at work cleaning out fire plugs, running water through them to clear away rust that might have collected.

The crew has been at work in Richmond for the past week cleaning out the hydrants.

New Rating For Martinez P. O.

MARTINEZ, Dec. 6. — If the Martinez post-office does $2500 worth of business during this month it will receive rating as a first class office under government regulation.

A total yearly business of $40,000 is required for a postoffice to get that rank, and the total business done to date requires that the $2500 is all that is necessary to attain that recognition.

Joseph Schweinizter, postmaster pointed out that the business for last month was approximately $600 short of the amount done a year ago, but despite that fact the $40,000 goal is expected to be reached, for more than $5000 in business was done during this month last year.

Huge Still Raid Nets Eight Arrests

MODESSTO, Dec. 6.—A huge moonshine plant on the Nahan ranch six miles northwest of Merced, was raided by federal officers today and eight men were arrested.

The plant had an estimated daily capacity of 500 gallons of alcohol. It was equipped with the most modern and expensive stills and machinery.

Teacher Pleads Guilty To Charge

No date has been set for imposition of sentence and it is believed that Hodge will ask probation.

Two Escape In Airplane Crash

MITCHELL FIELD, N. Y., Dec. 6.—UP—Two army fliers crashed on a mountain side near Grahamsville, N. Y., but escaped injury although their plane, a new observation and attack ship was destroyed, officials announced today.

Lieut. P. T. Johnson and Private John Patton, departed in a cross country mission and became lost in the fog and the crash followed.

Former Peace Officer Injured

MARTINEZ, Dec. 6.—Injured while walking along the highway near Antioch, Eugene Whelihan, 60 former constable of Antioch was in the county hospital tonight suffering from a skull fracture and a broken right leg in addition to other injuries.

Whelihan was reported by a nurse at the hospital tonight to be "resting a little easier." His condition was believed to be favorable for recovery.

Byron Acrey, 20 of Byron was the driver of the car that injured Whelihan, police state. Acrey told officers he was blinded by the lights of a vehicle as he was attempting to pass a car and did not see the former peace officer. The driver was not held.

Jurist Fights Off Attack Of Thugs

SAN FRANCISSCO, Dec. 6.— A smashing blow to the mouth delivered by Municipal Judge George J. Steiger, put a would-be holdup pair to flight last night, the jurist reported to police today.

Judge Steiger said he was about to enter his automobile at the Sacramento entrance of the Fairmont hotel when a man put a gun into his side as another one got into the rear seat of the car.

He turned and delivered a blow that knocked the man to the pavement, and the second one leaped from the car and fled.

Rail Veteran Is Retired

BENICIA, Dec. 6. — Forty-four years with the Southern Pacific railroad and not a single injury during that time is the record John DeForest boasted today as he received notice of his pension from company officials.

The entire 44 years service was performed in the Port Costa yards. DeForest recalled the time when Port Costa was the world's largest grain shipping center. At times as many as 14 locomotives were used in the yards to handle cars laiden with the grain that was being put aboard ocean going vessels for shipment abroad.

One of the awards for his long service will be the presentation of a pass that is good over the entire system.

Mass Meeting To Be Held Monday

Entertainment and speakers have been arranged for the evening. Grocery orders will be given.

"LOVE NEST" CASE DELAYED

Following her arrest in an alleged "love nest" Mrs. Pearl Cogeshall, 31 of San Jose, before Justice of the Peace A. A. Alstrom yesterday heard the attorney for her husband declare that a child allegedly born to her in Seattle, Wash., was the baby of another woman.

Mrs. Cogeshall was arrested at 105 Sixth street Friday night with Phil Brissell, 23 with whom she was allegedly living. Her husband made the complaint which preceded the arrest.

Robert Collins attorney for Cogeshall declared that his client was not the father of the child allegedly born to his wife, but was in reality the offspring of a Canadian nurse who entered the hospital at the same time as his wife.

Mrs. Cogeshall denied the charges of her husband declaring that she was the mother of the daughter although she had not seen her for more than a year.

Upon the recommendation of Tear N. Calfee, deputy district attorney the couple was released on the co-habitation charge on their own recognizance. The case was continued for 30 days.

Envoys Defy Police In Drinking Bouts

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Dispatches from a newspaper here today stated that prohibition and police officers had found persons bearing diplomatic credentials drinking openly in hotels and restaurants of this city.

It was reported some of the drinkers had challenged the enforcement officers to make any arrests. All that could be done, it was said was to check the credentials.

Grid Players Paid Honor

Twenty members of the American Legion football team, which has just completed a successful season, were honor guests last night at a banquet at Hotel Colombo.

With Dan "Hap" Bradley, manager of the team, acting as toastmaster, the members presented desk set as a token of their appreciation to Coach Claude Samples, who had charge of the boys this year.

Talks were made by various members of the team.

The eleven won four games, and tied two this season.

Boys Fined On Firearm Charges

Fines of $10 each and 30 day jail sentences with commitment withheld were given two Richmond youths convicted of discharging firearms within the city limits.

The case was the outgrowth of the wounding of Ira Etter, Oakland real estate man, shot in the hand by one of the boys.

The youths were Roger Duvers, 18 of 2420 Foothill avenue and Roger Arnaue, 18 of Martinez.

Four bullets struck the Etter car before he was hit in the hand. The boys were said to have been hunting along the waterfront wren the accident occurred.

Judge C. A. Odell assessed the fines.

Former Local Boy Honored

Herschel G. Frazier, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Frazier, 670 Fifth street was on his way to New York City today where he will visit the Squibbs dental laboratories for a short course of instruction.

The trip was made available because of Frazier's ability displayed as a salesman for the same concern. The young man was graduated from the Richmond Union High school here several years ago. He is now married and makes his residence in San Francisco.

Richmond Woman In Divorce Plea

MARTINEZ, Dec. 6.—Failure to provide and cruelty were the charges field today by Mrs. Harriet Eicher of Richmond, in her suit for divorce from C. E. Eicher.

PAIR ATTACKED BY MAD DOG

OAKLAND, Dec. 6.—A police dog suddenly mad attacked its master and mistress as they lay asleep last night.

Roy Hogart, 28 the husband fought off the animal with his bare hands and was severely lacerated before he was able to leave the house after his wife had escaped safely.

Mrs. Hogart attired only in night clothes covered by a coat stood for more than eight hours in the open before poundmen were successful in capturing the animal.

Hogart attributed the attack to the nervous strain the dog had undergone since the arrest of Frank Smith, slain bandit leader who lived directly in the rear of the Hogart cottage.

Rod Pantages To Claim Bride Soon

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—Rodney Pantages, son of Alexander Pantages, has announced his engagement to Beryl Sweeney a Los Angeles girl. Rodney with his brother Lloyd, who manages a Hollywood theater said he had announced the engagement to a group of friends some time ago, and had hoped to keep it a secret.

SOCCER CLUB WILL MEET CROCKETT

The Richmond soccer athletes will today attempt to gain revenge against the Crockett eleven when they tangle with the Crockett boys on the Nicholl Park field here in a league contest. The locals lost their season opened to Crockett by a one point margin. Today's contest should therefore present plenty of rivalry between these two evenly matched teams.

The local lineup for today will include: Urquhart, goal; Blair and O'Neil, fullbacks; Baker, Blair, Long, halfbacks; Grice, Sherratt, Pryde, Moscrop and Moore, forwards; Hood and Lemes, reserves.

The contest will start at 2:30 o'clock on the Nicholl field.

Legion Teams To Meet For Grid Title

Many local American Legion football fans will attend the Antioch-Santa Rosa Legion contest at the Oakland Coast league baseball park today for the American Legion football championship of northern California.

These two teams are two of the fastest, most powerful football aggregations ever to participate in American Legion competition in this state. Both squads administered rather bad defeats to the local Richmond American Legion boys, who themselves took plenty of hard competition down the line this year.

The winner of today's battle will meet the winner of the southern California American Legion competition. The kickoff in today's game will take place at 2 o'clock.

Odd Fellows Nine To Meet Y. M. I. Team

The San Pablo diamond will this afternoon be the battleground for the inter-county winter league claesh of the Richmond Odd Fellows and the Richmond Y. M. I. Both of these teams have been playing great ball through a fast high'y competitive season and should present local fans with plenty of action this afternoon.

Johnnie Babich, Seal prospect, will start on the mound for the Y. M. I. aggregation, Johnson re-

Either Kamb or Peacock will do the chucking for the Odd Fellows. Bill Gualdoni will be behind the plate for the lodgemen.

Prehistoric Mamal Unearthed In Oregon

SALEM, W. Va. —UP— Fossil bones of a prehistoric animal that may have been a dinosaur have been discovered here by Prof. Ernest R. Sutton, of Salem college. The bones were found buried in rock strata 100 feet below the top of a hill. Sutton said the bones appear to be those of a stegosaurus.

AL ESPINOSA DIEGEL TO MEET

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—UP—Leo Diegel, Agua Caliente pro and former national P. G. A. champion will play Al Espinosa, Chicago, for the $7000 purse and the first national open match play golf championship here tomorrow.

Diegel won his way to the final by defeating George Von Elm, the businessman golfer from Los Angeles, on the 18th green, while Espinosa earned the right to meet Diegel for the championship by disposing of Joe Ezar, the wandering caddy from Chicago, three and two in this afternoons play.

After eliminating Abe Espinosa, Chicago, 6 and 5, in the morning play, Von Elm confidently took on Diegel in the semi final. But Diegel had found his stride when playing against Willie Goggin, San Francisco, in the morning, and gave Von Elm a tough match. Von Elm made a strong bid for each hole with the result that Diegel approached the 18th only one up. The match looked as if it might go to extra holes.

Diegel drove his ball into a poor lie. His sand wedge shot failed to get it out and Von Elm took the hole.

It was a stymie on the 18th that won the match for Diegel. Both players were nicely on the green, but Diegel was inside and partially stymied his opponent. Von Elm's approach shot was short while Diegel was down in four. Von Elm made a valiant attempt to drop his next putt, but the ball rimmed the cup. Before a crowd of 4000 spectators he shook the hand of the victor.

Al Espinosa played Gene Sarazen, one of the favorites to win the title, completely out of the picture, defeating him two and one in the morning round.

Then he took on Joe Ezar in the semifinal. Ezar had previously taken on Fred Morrison, Los Angeles, and beaten him two and one, to win his way to the semi-final.

But Espinosa, who two years ago tied Bobby Jones in the national open championship, dispensed with the "caddy" 3 and 2. Throughout the battle he matched shots with Espinosa, one of America's best shot makers. It was a tough game and Espinosa had to play every foot of the fairways.

A piece of bad luck followed Ezar, who was given his walking papers Thursday after defeating his boss. On the eighth Espinosa stymied the caddy without a job and it was Ezar's bad luck to knock Al's ball down for a two.

Diegel and Al Espinosa will play for the championship at Lakeside golf course Sunday morning over a 36 hole route. More than 6000 people are expected to follow the play.

Rowing Comes To Front At Oregon State

CORVALLIS, Ore., Dec. 6. — There's one thing about college athletics—as soon as one sport has been well "worked over" there's still another left. At Oregon State College it's rowing.

Although the Beavers never have been a serious threat to other rowing kings of the Pacific coast —Washington and California—they now are preparing to show their real mettle.

A membership drive recently was started on Oregon State College campus to gain financial support for a crew that would force the Huskies and Bears to look to their laurels.

Financial difficulties have held back development of championship oarsmen, but athletic officials promise a real crew threat this year.

"There is little reason why O. S. C. shouldn't be a contender for rowing honors on the coast," said Coach J. C. Othus of Oregon State. "We have the Williamette river for practice, a long straight stretch of deep, smooth, slow flowing water. Weather conditions here are as favorable as in the Puget Sound country.

At the first meeting of the Oregon State Rowing club this fall, 40 men attended and pledged support to development of a high caliber crew.

In four previous rowing years, Oregon State's sweepsters developed into machines that won three out of the four contests with no less rivals than Washington's Jayvees, it was shown.

The University of Washington and California realized the added interest that might be instilled in Pacific coast rowing by addition of an equally well-developed crew. They recently donated two shells and a rowing barge to the college and since that time Oregon State has lacked only financial help to develop what some day may be a serious contender for Poughkeepsie honors.

IDEAL DOCTOR DISCOVERED BY MEDICO

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—A new conception of the ideal doctor—far beyond the old "family" doctor, or the currently-prevalent specialist —has been presented by Dr. Milton C. Winternitz, dean of Yale University School of Medicine.

The doctor of the future, he believes, must be a little of the psychologist, the sociologist, the economist and the lawyer, as well.

Medicine "must abandon its isolated position" and co-operate with other fie'ds in order that a fuller understanding of all the factors bearing on human welfare may be attained. Dean Winternitz declared in his annual report to President James Rowland Angell.

The patient, said Dean Winternitz, must be viewed in all his contacts and dealt with as a "human being in a world of reality, rather than as a detached pathological specimen."

In admitting students to the medical school, his report continued, a premium should be placed upon intel'igence rather than specific information. Professors should condense their courses rather than expand them, he added.

"The objective at Yale," said Dean Winternitz in his report, "is quite beyond the well-recognized, highly-developed and traditional form of medical center. The program for the future may be described brief'y as a long-term and thorough endeavor to determine the larger role medicine should be able to play in modern society. In approaching this broader problem, the School of Medicine requires the co-operation of many existing agencies. It has wittingly minimized its own objectives and has attempted successfully to fuse the activities of its sections with those of the university departments in the same general subjects."

MORE SEATS AT WASHINGTON STADIUM

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 6.—UP—Thirty-five thousand seats will be added to the University of Washington stadium before the 1932 grid season, giving it a capacity of 70,000 persons, according to plans announced by Earl Campbell, graduate manager.

Either an extension of the stadium as it now stands, or addition of a second tier, making the structure a double-decked affair, covered for stormy weather, will be constructed.

Extension of the stadium at both sides of the field could be accomplished at a cost of approximately $500,000 while a double-decked affair will cost more than $1,000,000, Campbell estimated.

"If we can find some way to finance the project we will probably build a double-decked covered addition, following the lead of Illinois University and other institutions," he said.

Campbell has requested information from architects throughout the country and will make a tour of inspection of eastern universities and colleges to study their athletic plants.

Work on the enlargement will be started at the close of the 1931 season.

The university's stadium was too small to hold the crowd that turned out on a rainy day to watch Washington fight Washington State to a 0-3 score. The stadium has a normal seating capacity of 32,000 and temporary seats were installed to hold 8000 more. In addition 2000 standing room tickets were sold and more than 42,000 persons entered the gates.

Washington enjoyed its most prosperous home season this year, and with the Huskies developing under Coach James Phelan and with an attempt being made to schedule more attractive home games the need for a large stadium is apparent.

In addition to the Washington State game, the California, Whitman, Idaho and Montana games attracted record crowds this season. The Huskies will bring Stanford and Oregon, and possibly Washington State and Southern California, here next year.

Oil Men Defy State in Cut In Production

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 6.—UP—The storm that has been brewing among independent mid-continent oil operators in protest to state controlled production curtailment broke here.

Open defiance to the state corporation commission's proration order was made today by three independent Oklahoma City operators who have joined H. H. Champlin, Enid refiner and producer, in fighting the order in federal court.

The Century Petroleum company, Marco Oil company and Royalty company and Oils, Inc., notified state authorities today that they would flow their wells wide open in defiance of the order pending trial of their appeals in federal court from the commission's orders.

Federal Judge Edgar S. Vaught set December 17 today as the date for hearing the appeal of the four companies on a petition asking revocation of the proration order on the grounds it was discriminatory and a "price fixing scheme of major oil companies." The appeals will be heard by the same three federal judges who two months ago upheld the constitutionality of the proration order.

Attorneys contended that pending appeal to federal court, the companies were not within the jurisdiction of the corporation commission and therefore could produce oil without restraint. E. S. Ratliff attorney for the corporation commission and W. J. Armstrong, state conservation officer, told the attorneys that the state would institute receivership proceedings against the companies if they violated the order.

Notre Dame Wins From Trojan Team

Carideo barked out the signals, the Notre Dame backs shifted. A pause, and then Schwartz faded back behind his own line, well protected by Brill, and tossed a 10-yard pass to Carideo off to the side. Carideo caught the ball running at full speed and outran two Southern California men for the remaining 10 yards for the first touchdown. Cariedo kicked goal and Notre Dame was in front, 7 to 0, never to be headed.

After a brief threat by Southern California, in which the Trojans made two first downs, one on a penalty and another on a pass, carrying the ball to Notre Dame's 41 yard line, Notre Dame dominated play the rest of the first half.

An 80 yard dash by Paul O'Conner, East Orange, N. J., substitute who unexpectedly started at fullback for the Irish, added Notre Dame's second touchdown in the first period.

Southern California held the Irish attack at bay in the second period, in which a Notre Dame touchdown was nullified by an offside penalty.

Notre Dame's third touchdown came in the first five minutes of play in the third period, the Irish covering 69 yards in six swift plays. The final touchdown came in the fourth period, two minutes before the end of the game, after Notre Dame had intercepted a pass on Southern California's 21 yard line.

Southern California's running attack which had wrecked California, Stanford and Washington, was futile in the face of almost brutal tackling by Notre Dame.

Three Downs

It was not until the last play of the third period that Southern California was able to make a single first down from scrimmage on a running play in the first half. Southern California made only three first downs, two of them on penalties and the other on a pass.

Southern California's heralded backs—Duffield, Mohler, Musick and Pinckert—were shackled by Notre Dame's bruising defense. The Trojans never really had a scoring opportunity, their farthest advance reaching Notre Dame's 34 yard line midway in the third period and to the 15 yard line in the last minute of play.

In winning its 10th straight contest of the season and its 19th in a row since Southern California beat the Irish, in 1928, Notre Dame amassed 435 yards from scrimmage 366 yards on running plays and 69 on passes.

O'Conner Stars

O'Conner, who started the season as a third string player, was the greatest ball carrier of the day. Dramatically stepping into the spot left vacant by the ineligible Savoldi and the injured Mullins, O'Conner ripped the Trojans' big, powerful line to ribbons, gaining 142 yards in the 11 times he carried the ball. Single handed O'Conner gained only six yards less than the entire Southern California team. Standing out in bold relief in this great gridiron battle was a tiny Notre Dame guard, Bert Metzger, and a master strategist and quarter back, Frank Carideo. Weighing only 153 pounds, the lightest man on the field, Metzger seemed to be in every play. His vicious tackling, hard charging and perfect blocking featured in almost every play.

Metzger's savage play almost resulted in a fight in the first few minutes of the third period. Consistently outplaying Baker, Southern California's heralded guard, Metzger became involved in an argument with him and another Notre Dame player had to yank Metzger by the arm away from the Trojan.

One of the greatest plays of the game was overshadowed by what happened a moment later. With Notre Dame leading, 7 to 0 in the first period, the Irish held Southern California on the former's 35 yard line.

On fourth down, Marshall Duffield, Southern California quarterback, and Rhodes scholar candidate, dropped back to kick. The pass from center passed over his head and bounded back, headed for the sidelines. Two Notre Dame players rushed up even with Duffield as he ran to retrieve the ball.

Great Play

Duffield recovered it before it rolled out of bounds, whirled around and kicked 50 yards over the goal line, almost in the arms of two Notre Dame players. It was one of the greatest plays ever made on any field.

It was quickly forgotten, however, when on the first play after Notre Dame lined up for scrimmage, O'Conner slanted off Southern California's right tackle, broke into the open and raced 80 yards along the side lines for Notre Dame's second touchdown. In this play, two Southern California players dived at O'Conner and missed him.

Although Notre Dame, with the shock troops playing most of the time failed to score in the second period, Southern California had to fight tenaciously to stave off the Irish. Only twice in the second period did the Trojans get the ball, and once they had to kick and the other time Notre Dame intercepted a pass.

Big Penalty

After Notre Dame marched to the Trojans five yard line in this period, a 15 yard penalty was imposed on the Irish. This, however, did not stop them and Lukats passed five yards to Hanley, who ran 15 yards for a touchdown. The play however, was called back and Notre Dame penalized five yards for offside.

Southern California was unable to gain after receiving the kickoff in the third period, and Notre Dame got the ball on a punt on its own 31 yard line. Schwartz ripped off 12 yards and Brill gained 3. Then Schwartz slipped off tackle and ran 42 yards to Southern California's 13 yard line before he was overtaken by Pinckert. Brill lost two yards, but the play was called back and Southern California penalized 5 yards for offside. On the next play, O'Conner slipped and failed to gain.

Then a lateral pass, Schwartz to O'Conner, was good, and the New Jersey Irishman swept wide around Southern California's right end for a touchdown. Arbelbide, Southern California's right end, was knocked unconscious on this play and had to be carried from the field.

First Fumble

Notre Dame made its first fumble of the game midway in the fourth period, when O'Conner dropped the ball but recovered it on Southern California's 23 yard line. On the next play, O'Conner broke away for 18 yards, running to the five yard line, but the play was nullified and Notre Dame penalized to the 30 yard line.

Play continued in Southern California's territory until the last two minutes of play when Hanley intercepted a pass on the Trojan's 21 yard line. In three plays, Notre Dame made its fourth touchdown. Hanley gained eight yards in two efforts and then Lukats ran thru Southern California's left tackle for 13 yards and the final score. Jaskwhich kicked goal this time, and the game ended a few moments later with the ball in Southern California possession on Notre Dame's 25 yard line.

HIGH CAGERS TO PLAY TWO GAMES

The Richmond union high school varsity cagers will see plenty of action this week, meeting two fast high school teams of the bay region. They will first meet San Rafael Tuesday on the local floor and will go to University high school in Oakland on Thursday.

Both of these teams should furnish strong opposition to the local varsity men. The Richmond varsity showed plenty of speed and accuracy in its opening game with Crockett, but was unable to take down the Emeryville high school athletes.

This year's team is a good one, and is expected to display a consistent brand of basketball throughout the coming Alameda County Athletic league season. The four pre-season practice games that they are playing should give them fine preparation and experience for their harder tasks in the league.

The league schedule will get under way Jan. 30, when Piedmont will play at Richmond. Richmond will go to Alameda Feb. 3, while Richmond will go to Berkeley Feb. 6. Richmond will play at Piedmont Feb. 10. Alameda will come to Richmond on Feb. 13, and Berkeley will meet Richmond here on Feb. 17. The play-off for the tie in division A will occur Feb. 20, and division B will be played off Feb. 27. On March 6 or 7 the champions of the Alameda County Athletic league will meet the champions of the Contra Costa league. The play-off for the North Coast section finals of division A will be held on March 14.

Jones Lauds Knute Rockne's Rambling Irish

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 6.—UP—Statements of the coaches and captains concerned in the Notre Dame Southern California game today follow:

Tom Conley, captain of Notre Dame: "I am the happiest man in the world. It broke our hearts to learn that Moon Mullins would be unable to play before his home-town crowd so we went out there to win the game for Mullins. I think Bucky O'Conner, who took Mullin's place, was the big star of the game."

Howard Jones, coach of Southern California: "We were beaten by a better team. It was the greatest Notre Dame team I've ever seen. Rockne should be proud of his squad."

Marshall Duffield acting captain of Southern California: "The Notre Dame bunch was the best ball club I ever saw. We looked like a bunch of green kids against an experienced squad."

Hunter Kills Rabbit For Tree Squirrel

MONTICELLO, N. Y., Dec. 6.—UP—Kenneth Somerville is pondering over the possibility of rabbits as tree climbers. While hunting with some friends near here he saw, what he believed to be a large gray squirrel in a tree. He fired and down came the animal. It was a gray rabbit.

ON YOUR BACK HAS POWERFUL STORY

One of the most forceful and at the same time most logical audible screen plots ever seen or heard at the Fox-California Theater, "On Your Back" is now being seen and heard with Irene Rich as the brilliant Fifth Avenue modiste who tells the lovely ladies she meets to wear their brains on their back.

The story is a Fox movietone production of Rita Weiman's intriguing character analysis which appeared earlier this season in magazine form. It deals with the skyrocket like rise to fame of an ambitious dressmaker who rose to success through the vanity of her clustomers.

"Wear Your Brains On Your Back" is adopted early in her career as an enticement for girls of the chorus, and actresses, to pay more than they can afford for her fashionable creations.

Lavish gowns and fragile, delicate negligees are the bait with which lures them into her establishment. Credit extended freely is still further inducement for the girls to wear her expensive finery, although payment is invariably exacted for them.

The dressmaker soon learns that many men are anxious to meet her customers. What better way than to have them meet casually over tea in her shop? This becomes her policy and she soon finds that men will quickly pay the bills if they are only informed that their friends are in debt.

But her mistake comes when she induces her son's sweetheart to accept valuable dresses for which she cannot pay and then expects her to get the money from a wealthy man who also admires her.

The outcome of this tangle in which ambition clashes with mother love is forcefully portrayed by an excellent cast which includes besides Miss Rich, H. B. Warner, Raymond Hackett, Marion Shilling, Ilka Chase, Wheeler Oakman, Rose D'one and Arthur Hoyt.

Adaptation and dialogue for the picture were made by Howard J. Green and the direction by Guthrie McClinic, is deft and refreshingly novel in its treatment. In fact we advise all the fans to see this dramatic treat for eye and ear.

"OFFICE WIFE" TO BE SHOWN AT THE FOX

Will you ever forget Lewis Stone in "The Woman of Women?" or "The Trial of Mary Dugan" or "Madame X" Do you remember him in "The Patriot?"

Now you will see him in a role different from any of these—in a picture whose name you will always think of when you think of Stone. The picture is "The Office Wife," a Warner Bros. and Vitaphone production to be shown at the Fox-California Theater tomorrow.

There is an intriguing story that deals with a triangle, of which we have all heard, the business man, his secretary, and his wife, handled from a different angle. It is the story of the jealous secretary, instead of the jealous wife.

P. R. R. Ordered To Sell Railroad

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP—The Pennsylvania railroad and the Pennsylvania company were held today by the Interstate Commerce commission to have violated the Clayton anti-trust act by acquiring stock in the Lehigh Valley and the Wabash railroads.

The commission ordered the Pennsylvania to divest itself of the stock within six months of December 2.

The Pennsylvania bought control of the Lehigh and Wabash about two years ago without first obtaining permission of the commission.

Fear Paralyzed Man Sees Wife Killed

HARTFORD, Conn.-Fear paralyzed the vocal cords of Thomas Kusiensky when he looked from a window of his home and saw his wife crossing a track in the path of an express train. Unable to warn her, he saw her struck and killed by the train.

Bigger And Better Lambs This Year

PARIS TOURIST DECREASE PROBED

PARIS, Dec. 6.—UP—The business men of Paris, aghast at falling tourist trade receipts, have decided that the famed capital of pelasure is being slandered. They are going to do something about it.

The downtown merchants have decided to incorporate and organize "an energetic counter-campaign of truths and facts, impersonally presented."

According to theme, there are no shady touts along the boulevards to flash obscene postcards before the eyes of startled tourists. The boulevard girls, they contend, merely walk for their health.

Restaurant and night club owners never over charge and the Apache is a God-fearing gentleman.

George Barclay, known to tourists for the elegance of his establishment in the Avenue de l'Opera, has been named spokesman.

"It is time that Paris replied effectively to the malicious campaign of slander which is being directed against her, particularly in Anglo-Saxon countries," Barclay said to the United Press.

M. Barclay is a councillor of Foreign France, and has travelled extensively in Europe. So far, he has not visited the United States but a trip to America is included in his projects, although the date has not been set.

Franklin Museum Planned In East

PARIS, Dec. 6.—UP—Plans for a Benjamin Franklin museum have been announced by a group of the famous man's admirers. The museum is to be in the house on the Brittany coast that Franklin occupied in 1776.

Inquisitive historians recently discovered the house in St. Goustan, in the harbor of Auray, where Frank'in lived for a month upon his arriva' from the United States.

Inquiries were made by Franklin fans and it was found the old house could be purchased for $2600. An option was taken until January 1, 1931 before which a hastily organized committee headed by Bononi Lockwood, of New York, hopes to secure the necessary money to purchase and equip the museum.

The house is a plain three-story Breton house, admirably arranged for the exhibition of Franklin souvenirs. Many exist throughout France and now are being collected.

The French revere the memory of Franklin whose coarse brown clothing and simple philosophical manners captured the imagination during the luxurious epoch of Louis XVI. In Paris he is honored by a street in his name and a large statute in the Passy district.

Cripple Beggar By Day, Lord Of Harem At Night

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 6.—UP—A cripp'ed beggar on the streets by day and a sulton in his underground harem by night was the double role lived for years by an ingenious resident of Coyocacan until betrayed through a jealous woman.

Jose Ramirez, now called "Don Juan of the Wondrous Court," was a successful beggar. But the man was ambitious and not satisfied with the results of his own efforts.

So having charm for the fair sex, he capitalized his attractions and enlisted in his service of begging six of his feminine admirers. These he sent into the streets for alms, and at night they returned to share his caresses and to deliver their collections.

The court of the "beggar-sultan" who found himself enriched by the contributions of his helpers, was maintained in a degree of elegance not compatible with his means of livelihood in a cave near the town. Here he dropped his pose of a cripple and lived in comfort.

Friction arose in the harem, because Ramirez failed to divide his attention equally, and the slighted woman betrayed him to the police.

Officials visited the cave and ended Ramirez' game. The "cripple" fled from the police. His companions were held.

U. S. Tax Experts Recommend Less China Taxation

SHANGHAI, Dec. 6.—UP—Fewer and better taxes for China are recommended in a report on revenue policy submitted to the National government by the American Kemmerer commission of financial experts.

The report points out that the Chinese taxpayer has little or no comprehension of the use of taxes as a contribution to the expense of maintaining essential public services, while public servants in China are similarly unacquainted with this fact.

Among the taxes named by the report as highly harmful to China's trade and prosperity is "likin," or the internal transit tax, which it is hoped may be reduced and ultimately abandoned.

Other taxes whose abandonment is urged include native customs duties, coast trade duty, and export duties on goods shipped from one Chinese port to another.

On the other hand the report finds that this reduction need not have an unfavorable effect upon revenue, since it is feasible to select commodities "which can readily bear higher rates if repeated levies are eliminated and if only a comparatively small number of such commodities are taxed."

It is found that much dependance must be placed on import duties, and taxes on matches and Portland cement are recommended in the consumption tax category.

AFRICA-CENSUS TO BE TAKEN BY FRANCE

PARIS, Dec. 6.—UP—An official French mission is leaving here this month for two years in the darkest and blackest belt of Central Africa to count the black and uncivilized French subjects.

The explorers, headed by the ethnologist, M. Marcel Griaule, will renounce civilization at Dakar, on the western African coast.

Wild Trip

The party will push its way thru virgin forests, over mightly rivers and dangerous mountains until it has succeeded in crossing the wildest part of the African continent.

It is estimated the explorers will have crossed 5000 miles of roadless land, 2500 miles of rivers and more than 750 miles of forbidding mountains when they arrive at Djibouti, on the eastern African coast just at the southern tip of Arabia.

Their object is to gather ethnographical and scientific material about the wild tribes under French rule in Senegal, French Guinea, Nigeria, Cameroons, Equatorial Africa, Togoland and the natives under other foreign rule in Nigeria, lower Sudan, Ethiopia.

6 Wheeled Autos

Only six-wheeled automobiles and trucks will be employed throughout the uncharted region. Canoes and larger boats will be carried on the trucks and for days the party will live on the rivers hunting down unfound tribes and gathering material concerning their habits, morals and religions.

The expedition is being backed by the Ethnological Institute, the Commission of Missions, the government, the Academy of Inscriptions and Fine Letters, the Natural History Museum, and the Geographical Society.

GERMANY TESTS INDEMNITY OPINION

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—UP—Germany is sending aloft trial balloons by increasing intimations that the economic distress of the German people may force a moratorium which would postpone payments of the war indemnity.

A two years' postponement is permissible for the Germans, without incurring penalties; but, the deferred payments would have to be added to the normal ones after that, unless the creditor nations were willing to wipe them off.

France Threats

France has shown no intention of doing this; and instead is displaying every resolve of using compulsion, if necessary to compel Germany to live up to her indemnity agreement.

The French frontier facing Germany is being heavily fortified and the Paris government refuses to agree to any proposal reducing France's military strength.

Germany has not yet met with the slightest encouragement to declare a moratorium as a means of frightening France. The trial balloons are being punctured. Yet, as a preliminary maneuver, that was to be expected, and the Germans have lost nothing, though neither have they gained anything.

Berlin Gesture

A new diplomatic gesture from Berlin is certain to follow, however. There are indications that it will take the form of trying to rouse world public opinion on the question of limitation of land armaments. Germany already has begun such an argument at Geneva; but, it is as yet very weak.

The Germans claim the reason they consented to limit their own military strength, at the time of the Versailles treaty, was because it was understood all other nations would do the same.

That is not true. Germany was disarmed because the war victors, especially France, demanded it, and Germany could not resist, having made her unconditional surrender to the Allies.

Big French Army

France considers it vital to her own existence that her army be kept in a position of over-whelming superiority to Germany's.

The Germans feel it is possible to create international pressure which France will be unable to resist in the long run. Once France and Germany were on a comparatively equal footing in military strength, the Germans would then be able to risk declaring a moratorium and take the chance that no force could be applied to compel them to pay at the present high rate.

A permanent reduction of the war indemnity would probably be necessary.

This is the ultimate objective of the German disarmament propaganda. From the standpoint of Germany's own future, it is a legitimate procedure; but, under present circumstances, from France's standpoint it threatens a debacle for France.

'Bill' Thompson And Flo Zeigfeld Youths Recalled

SPALDING, Neb., Dec. 6.—UP—Today William Hale Thompson's interests are political and his name is significant of "heavy politics" in Chicago, while Florenz Ziegfeld's name calls to mind "glorified" American girls.

But residents of western Nebraska recall when Thompson was much more concerned with the invasion of his herds by coyotes on his Ewing, Neb., ranch than with the invasing of American schools by English history texts, and when Flo Ziegfeld prided himself more on his ability to judge fine horses than feminine pulchritude.

F. C. Heinz, of Spaulding, who once was employed by the present Chicago mayor as a "cowman" recalls both men as youths of 20 on the ranch owned by Col. William Hale Thompson, Sr., father of the Chicago mayor.

Stories of the West led Young Bill to run away from home at 15 to seek a fortune in the West. He ran first to the ranch of his grandfather in Wyoming. There he learned the cowman's stock of tricks, and won his way to a foremanship.

In 1885, Col. Thompson decided his son should settle down in his chosen business as ranchman and purchased and stocked a ranch 16 miles from Ewing for him.

It was during Young Bill's time as ranch manager that Heinz met Ziegfeld. The future judge of beautiful women came to the ranch to visit his former schoolmate. He was at that time a member of the Black Horse Guard militia and considered himself a good horseman.

But his experiences with the unruly range horses of the Thompson ranch were not always flattering to his horsemanship, Heinz recalls.

Banker Slain By Holdup Man

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 6.—UP—James McFarland, 37, an official of the Allegheny Trust company of Verona, a Pittsburgh suburb, was shot to death today when he refused a bandit's demand for money. The bandit escaped after picking up approximately $1000.

McFarland, assistant secretary and treasurer of the bank, was in the teller's cage when the bandit entered. The bandit walked in back of the cage in which McFarland was standing, talking to two women patrons.

"Stick 'em up," the robber commanded. As McFarland turned to face him, the bandit shot him in the head, killing him almost instantly.

Ignoring Miss Florence McNeil, a bookkeeper, the bandit scooped up what money was in reach and fled. Outside the bank the robber jumped into an automobile and sped away.

Two Children Feared Stolen

MAUCH CHUNK, Pa., Dec. 6.—UP—Airplanes and Boy Scouts searched the mountain sections today for William McFadden, 4, and William McTague, 5, missing from home since last night. The two children were last seen following an organ grinder through the streets here. It was feared they had been kidnapped.

COCKTAIL WITH CORK, NEWEST JOKE DRINK

PARIS, Dec. 6.—UP—Beware of the "shipwrecked mariner" cocktail, which contains a slice of cork instead of the usual cherry on the end of the stick while the ingredients are salt and water!

Paris has always been conspicuous to tourists for the nobility and mobility of its waiters, and since they have just had their annual waiters' race at Montmartre they have returned to their cafes and night clubs full of tricks and suggestions to tempt customers.

Waiter Race

Those who saw the annual race had a further opportunity of appreciating the nimble footed 'garcons' in what may be described as a professional capacity for each competitor had to carry a tray bearing a bottle of, shall we say water, and had to finish the course without a mishap.

They all wore the white jacket which is generally replacing the old black one, and presented quite a spectacle.

Paris waiters are proverbially speedy on foot and even those who have long passed the mile post of youth maintain an alertness not usually found in men of other occupations.

Distance Runners

It is not generally known, but some of the best French long-distance runners were waiters. Years ago one of them named Saint-Yves not only won a marathon race in London but set a new record without having any special training.

Another named Siret, was unbeatable for many years in the annual race around Paris.

Two hundred purveyors of liquid refreshment took part in the Montmartre celebration and M. Edourd Salenes was duly adjudged the city's fastest waiter.

Stubblefield Rites Are Held

Last rites were held for Mrs. Mary Stubblefield of this city yesterday afternoon in the First Baptist church, with Rev. Kenneth B. Wallace officiating. The soloist for the services was Mrs. Elza Calfee, who sang "Abide With Me" and "When I Come to the End of the Long, Long Road." The church was filled with many friends and members of the family.

Those acting as pall bearers were: Carl Hensen, Earl Hensen, Harry Watson, Earl Winningham, Clyde Parker, and Frank Blackhard.

The service was followed by interment in Sunset View cemetery. Funeral arrangements were handled by Wilson and Kratzer.

Jazzless Dance Pleases Ford

DETROIT, Dec. 6.—UP—A dance which lasted five hours without one note of jazz was held here recently, and a good time was had by all—including the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ford.

The only steps used were the old-time dances—the varsouvienne, the circular two-step, the schottische—done to the music of a harpsichord. The guests were the delegates to the Women's National Farm and Garden association, and certain special guests invited by the Fords.

These included Mrs. Charles E. Cotting of Boston, the former Constance Binney, of Broadway fame, and Judge Edward J. Jeffries, a stern magistrate in the courtroom, but graceful as a courtier on the ballroom floor.

Each feminine guest was dressed in a costume as archaic as was consistent with modern fashions. Mrs. Ford wore a pale pink frock, the skirt of which touched the floor.

New Trees To Aid Cure Of Dread Disease

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP—The discovery that chaulmoogra, the Asian tree from which the most effective remedy for leprosy yet found is derived, grows well in Porto Rico, has resulted in bringing seedlings half way around the world in an effort to stamp out the dread scourge of mankind in the western hemisphere.

Brought from Siam and the East Indian Islands several years ago, the first chaulmoogra trees in the new world were planted in one corner of the small leper colony at Trujillo Alto, Porto Rico. They have thrived remarkably, William P. Kramer, head of the Porto Rico forestry system, revealed when he visited national headquarters of the forest service here. Porto Rico was envisaged not only as an important nursery center but as a future source of chaulmoogra oil, the specific product which has helped many leprosy sufferers.

As much as $10 each has been paid for the seedlings, some of which have been flown to inland Porto Rico by airplane after being transported by steamer across the Pacific and through the Panama Canal to Caribbean ports.

Phone Aids Woman Win Political Seat

MELROSE, Mass., Dec. 6.—UP—The value of the telephone as a political campaign medium was demonstrated by Mrs. Mary Livermore Barrows at the recent state election.

Though confined to bed by illness, she managed to conduct a telephone campaign which netted enough votes to insure her re-election to the Massachusetts legislature.

CHEVROLET SIX LAUDED BY MANY

The reception accorded the new 1931 models announced by Chevrolet has caused great satisfaction to the whole motor-car industry. Word comes from the Oakland assembly plant of Chevrolet Motor company, which assembles and ships cars for the entire West, that orders are piling up at a furious rate, insuring employment for hundreds of men, and that dealers throughout the entire Pacific region are asking for more cars.

"The Chevrolet announcement has stimulated trade throughout the automotive industry," stated officials of Conneil and Shumate, local Chevrolt dealers. "The reception accorded the new car has surpassed our fondest hopes. Crowds have thronged dealers' salesrooms ever since the announcement, and the gratifying number of orders has created a new spirit of optimism among motor-car dealers and business leaders throughout the country.

"The roominess, speed and power of the new models appeal to every one who has seen and driven the new cars. Among the many improvements and refinements are the completely insulated front compartment, the new and easier steering apparatus, the more durable clutch, the smoother and quieter transmission, the liberal use of rustless chromium plate on exposed parts.

"Thousands of men have been put to work in Chevrolet and Fisher body plants throughout the nation, turning out motors and bodies for the new models. Production is being stepped up as rapidly as possible to insure adequate supplies of new cars for dealers everywhere, who so far have not been able to get enough to fill the orders they have taken since the announcement of the new models a few weeks ago."

Two Killed In Gravel Slide

NEWARK, Ohio, Dec. 6.—UP—Two men were killed and three others were injured when a gravel bank on the J. W. Dudgeon farm near Fallsburg caved in today.

Ira Dugan, 60, and William Moates, 45, were killed and Joe Bodle, 60, Ralph Norman, 45, and Otis Kerr 50, were hurt. All are residents of Fallsburg.

German Shippers Complain About Business Slump

BERLIN, Dec. 6.—UP—Tribulations of German shipping, as affected by the world business doldrums, are described in the annual report of the Hamburg Shippers' Association, which embraces 53 concerns controlling a total 1,900,000 net tonnage.

The report recalls the amazing achievement of German shipyards in rebuilding Germany's merchant marine, after the war. With 4,500,000 tons of ships, Germany now has regained four-fifths of its pre-war tonnage and is again a major factor.

Meanwhile the German slice of world shipping has shrunk. There were "only" 49,000,000 tons of ships sailing the world's oceans, lakes and rivers in 1914; now there are 69,600,000 tons.

Just before the war, Germany's portion of the world's total shipping amounted to 11.1 per cent; but as the number of vessels built and launched grew, the German share fell to 6.1 percent.

Britain's share dropped from 39 to 30 percent during the same 16 years, while the United States emerged as the gainer, having expanded its share of the world's shipping from six to 16 percent.

The plaint of the Hamburg shippers is prompted by the precipitated drop in freight traffic, which has naturally lowered shipping receipts and which has been paralleled by a constant rise in sailors' wages and taxes for welfare purposes.

TROUSSEAU OF SOPHIA TO BE SIMPLE

PARIS, Dec. 6.—UP—Simplicity and elegance characterize the wedding gown and entire trousseau of Princess Sophia, the 16-year-old daughter of Prince Andrew of Greece, whose marriage to Prince Christopher of Hesse, brother-in-law of Princess Mafalda of Italy, will occur Dec. 15 near Frankfort.

The wedding gown will be one of the most regal gowns made for any recent bride, royal or otherwise. In keeping with her extreme youth she has chosen heavy white satin, fitted lightly to her figure and falling from the waist in long flowing folds. The long, tight sleeves will complete the mediaeval effect.

A long train will be suspended from her shoulders, exquisitely embroidered in silver, and she will wear a beautiful diamond tiara which will keep the veil of tulle edged with 'point de Paris' lace in place.

The princess' evening dresses also are simple. They are belted at the normal waistline and reach to just below the ankle. An extremely lovely gown in rose mongol has been selected for the special reception which is to be given the evening before the wedding.

Full Length Coats

For her evening coats she has preferred full length models, heavily furred and usually with blue fox. For morning and sports wear she will have suits in blue and beige tweed, and, like the remainder of her trousseau, these are noticeable for their charming simplicity.

There will be a simple ceremony in the Protestant church near the castle in Frankfort, since the Prince is a Lutheran. A second ceremony, according to the rites of the Greek Orthodox church, to which the princess belongs, will be held afterwards.

BIGGER AND BETTER

THE GREAT AMERICAN VALUE

Fine-car distinction and quality in the new Chevrolet Six

Again, Chevrolet and General Motors have utilized their combined resources to establish a new and higher standard of value for the American motor car.

The new Chevrolet represents a type of economical transportation that America has long anticipated—a low-priced six styled with such striking talent and good taste, so smartly beautiful and complete in its perfection of detail, so advanced and refined mechanically that you will immediately recognize it as the Great American Value.

This great value is the outcome of four basic Chevrolet advantages: (1) The savings of volume production in nineteen immense, modern plants. (2) The economies which result from great purchasing power. (3) The benefits of continuous research in General Motors laboratories and on the General Motors Proving Ground. And (4) the close association with the Fisher Body Corporation who, this year, have surpassed all their previous achievements in developing bodies of outstanding quality, refinement and value.

These basic advantages have made it possible to build a finer car at lower cost. They have enabled Chevrolet to offer a car with a longer wheelbase—greater roominess and comfort—strikingly smarter style—impressive new luxury—more thoroughly satisfactory performance—greater dependability. And to pass on these savings of efficient manufacturing to the buyer in the form of lower prices!

YANKEE FOOTBALL IN ENGLAND

THE Harvard-Yale football game, broadcast in Great Britain, didn't mean a thing to radio subscribers over there. We think we can tell you why.

SCENE—A London club. The radio is on for the second half.

ANNOUNCER—Now, folks, the ball is on the 24-yard stripe and the players are lining up again.

ALGY—I say, old bean, what's the significance of all this lining up rot?

FREDDY—The players sore of quene up, I suppose, like us Britishers waiting for a tram. A most disgusting sporting custom, don't you think?

ALGY—It's absolutely ribald, old fruit. Why, dash it all——

ANNOUNCER—And now the pigskin is soaring through the air. It's FREDDY—Pigskin? Pigskin? Do they play the bally old game with a week-end case? Imagine tossing a piece of luggage through the air!

ALGY—Not a very sporting thing to do. Still, I'm sure I heard the wireless announcer correctly.

ANNOUNCER—No, folks, that forward pass was grounded. Too bad.

ALGY—And now the blooming thing is grounded, Freddy. Are you certain they're not using a dirigible?

FREDDY—It's well beyond me, old thing. First a week-end case goes sailing through the air and now a gas bag is grounded. It may be good football, but it's not cricket.

* * *

ANNOUNCER—Folks, the score is now 13 to 0. Harvard missed the point from touchdown.

ALGY—Did you hear that, old bean? Harvard quite missed the point—and they call us Britishers stupid at humor!

FREDDY—Yes, old fruit, Harvard missed the point, but the wireless man neglected to tell the anecdote. I should like to have a try at fathoming it myself.

ANNOUNCER—And now they're in a huddle, folks. Yale is——

ALGY—Freddy, I ask you—what is a huddle?

FREDDY—Are you sure the wireless speaker didn't say a muddle?

ANNOUNCER — And now they're coming out of the huddle.

ALGY—There! Do you see? It's a huddle they're coming out of!

FREDDY—Perhaps a huddle is bally American slang for a semi-comatose state.

ALGY—My view, old top, is that a huddle is a sort of refreshment tent where the players repair for tea.

FREDDY—By jove, that's excellent, Algy! Yale was having crumpets and tea!

* * *

ANNOUNCER — That play was a dandy, folks. It went right through the guard.

ALGY—Good Lord, old top, do they have a guard out on the field?

FREDDY—It would seem so, old egg. Doubtless something like our Coldstream Guard—to preserve order among the contestants.

ALGY—But the guards couldn't have had their sabres unsheathed. I distinctly heard the wireless man report Harvard rushed through the guard.

FREDDY—Harvard was doubtless equipped with machine guns, old chap. I understand from a Sunday Observer editorial that all Americans carry Vimy-Rickers machine guns.

ANNOUNCER—Boy, oh, boy, did Harvard tackle Booth that time!

ALGY—Did he say Booth? Isn't that a sort of telephone contraption?

FREDDY—In a way, yes and no. A booth is also a secluded nook in a restaurant, I believe.

ALGY — Then Harvard evidently took possession of the booth to have its biscuits and tea.

FREDDY—Quite right, old top. For Yale had tea time only a moment ago, I quite distinctly heard.

ANNOUNCER—The game's all over, folks. There's the final whistle.

ALGY—The final whistle? Dash it all, do they quit work like blooming factory hands?

FREDDY—It's all beyond me, Algy. I never heard such balderdash as Yankee football. Algy, I challenge you to a match of chess that we Britishers can understand.

ALGY—Done! Perkins, two brandy and sodas—and turn off that idiotic wireless set!

The Beauty Shop

By Frances Olivier

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

THERE are fashions in faces too, you know, for make-up and expression and coiffures both date and catalog one. Yes, in quite the same way that clothes do.

Now, no woman should be her age—she should be younger. But, your truly smart woman will be of her age not only in her hats and frocks but in her lipstick—and the way she uses it—her figure, her hairdressing and even the very look in her eyes.

And those who think that a fashionable facial expression and an up-to-date complexion are killing to individuality will prove the logic of their belief by dressing like Queen Elizabeth or Helen of Troy—or whichever lady of the past represents their type.

Those who care about looking chic alluring and 1931 will surely be interested in the following:

BEAUTY FASHION NOTES

THIS YEAR'S HEAD is still sleek of outline but softly, femininely sleek as opposed to the boyish trimness of yesteryear. Hair is longer or long and waved or ringletted or both, but always sculptured to reveal the outlines of the head.

THE COMPLEXION OF THE MOMENT is natural, beautifully natural. Powder, rouge, lipstick, eye make-up, even foundation creams and lotions have but one object. And that is to enhance the born-with tones of skin, eyes and lips. No more dead white faces and lips like new wounds. And no heavily, artifically decorated eyes. No crazy tones of powder and garish shades of rouge—praise be!

THE 1931 FIGURE must be of a delicately rounded slenderness. Thinness, flatness are passe. Plumpness is commonplace. And fatness is, as always, a sin. Hips are definitely out. Shoulders are much in evidence. The narrow-shouldered are admonished to hold themselves "broad" and to choose clothes that add to the apparent width of the shoulder. Necks are long, straight, classic Greek like lovely Doric columns.

As for facial expression and mannerisms in the modern mode, they are the result of a viewpoint—a most interesting viewpoint too. It is neither aggressively masculine nor passively, wishy-washily feminine. It is the sort of viewpoint that lends tenderness and strength to the expression, frankness, and candor and yet withal a mysterious reserve.

Women with such a viewpoint are beautifully poised. There are no waste motions with hands or arms or shoulders, never, never a suggestion of coyness in the movements or the face. But there is a simply tremendous charm.

First Whisperings of the Southern Dress Trends

By Ann Roberts

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

SOUTHERN things are coming in quite gradually but with all the flare of newness that sets every feminine lover of dress agog.

I can't tell you much about them now but I can give you hints that are sure and certain—enough to let you know which way the wind is blowing.

* * *

HATS always start the season. Then be it known that—

Brims are coming back—for town, for country, for sport and for the beach, of course.

Rough straws in the most seductive varieties will be largely used.

Great, big, floppy hats for the beach, the bigger and more amusing the better. Their crowns are shallow so that they can be pushed way back to show the hair around the face. And since hair is softly and becomingly arranged just now, that posing is all for the best.

* * *

PAJAMAS—These are of crisp linens in plain colors binded and banded with contrasting colors. The idea is that you have many suits of them varying their wear continually as the warm seashore days pass on.

Trousers are fuller—very full.

They are worn with white patent leather belts with colored buckles. Or the belts are of narrow colored patent leather to go with the color of the pajama suit and the buckles will be covered with the same.

One pajama suit has plain white pants with a striped jersey shirt.

* * *

WOOLS—Plenty of days in the South and during a Northern summer when you need a bit of warmth for covering. Well, wool dresses go on. They have been accepted by smart women and will not be abandoned for summer, for some of them are so sheer and lacelike that they really can't be called hot. They are just an extra bit of warmth in the smartest summer manner.

Skirts for suits are box pleated all the way round.

Coats are double breasted of the box variety—short and square looking.

Jersey suits and two-piece dresses are leaders. Some skirts with inverted tucks so close and full that they give a scalloped appearance around the bottom. Indeed some of them are accented by hand scalloping to make the finish at the hem.

Jersey dresses for sports and spectator sports are fascinating with their little cap sleeves and short sleeves, reaching midway between shoulder and elbow.

There are no absolutely sleeveless dresses—everything has a little sleeve of some sort, though it be ever so short.

Short sleeves are cut up in oblongs and faced with plaid. Cap sleeves are faced with plaid. Then there are little plaid belts to match—these, of course, on dresses of plain colors, preferably white.

Some silk materials look like wool—soft and spongy. They make good-looking suits and skirts and dresses.

* * *

COATS—Angora coats are reappearing. They were very good last summer season—they are better now perhaps because they are better understood, and you know that you want them and what they will do for service. In white, off-white and yellow the colors are the best.

There is a combination polo and coachman coat made of paddock cloth which is really a thick wool fleece. This is good in the same colors and awfully smart as to cut.

White alligator bags to carry along are on the smart list.

* * *

BLOUSES—Handkerchief linen blouses are right to wear with suits. They have pleated ruffles and ties, and are wonderfully crisp and fresh looking.

Dutch collars round the base of the neck are embroidered and hemstitched in what once was called the "Peter Pan" style. They are lovely on young throats and becoming always with the collar of a suit.

Gifts Dressed in Their Best

Copyright Press Publishing Company (New York World) 1930

SAY what we will about the spirit of the gift counting more than its outward appearance, there was never a beautifully wrapped Christmas package that did not seem more intriguing than a poorly packed gift, regardless of intrinsic value.

And how flattering it is to receive a package that seems to reflect one's own individuality instead of that of someone else. Say that our favorite color is the tenderest shade of spring leaf green, and that we have a penchant for silver. When someone remembers that at Christmas and sends an ever-so-small remembrance in chartreuse wrappings tied with silver gauze in a tremendous chou, it does give one a sense of great importance!

This season, more than ever before, there is offered to artistically minded persons a most fascinating array of papers and brand new ribbons that have never been seen in other years.

For the gift luxurious, there are silver and gold papers and lovely things in peacock feather and butterfly designs. For everything, from the least gift of home-made cookies up to the huge packages of household linens, towels and bath sets, it is smart to use the transparent cellophane paper, which is now made in Christmas colors of gold, green, red, violet and lavender, as well as in clear transparent sheets and printed designs.

Another novelty of the season is the cellophane ribbon which comes in eighteen-yard spools at 10 cents and is the toughest, most durable ribbon yet known for gift wrapping. It may be had in deep cherry red, a vivid green and gold, and will neither tarnish nor lose its luster no matter how long it is kept.

Modernistic papers in high colors and designs most exotic also flourish against the winter background, although as a rule the better modern papers are more expensive than equally effective wrappings in the other groups. One can be as modernistic as need be merely by a clever mixture of plain and transparent papers in contrasting colors. A package wrapped in shiny black paper and tied with a huge red cellophane bow, for example, will stand out from among all its neighbors. A large star cut from silver cardboard and fastened to the top of a long, narrow package wrapped in paper of a deep cathedral blue and tied with silver ribbon also makes an unusual package, which is nevertheless quite simple.

Cube-shaped boxes are odd as contrasted with the older forms. One wrapped in gilt paper of the peacock feather pattern, tied with peacock-blue metallic ribbon and sealed with silver makes a stunning appearance, while a box wrapped in plain gold paper and tied with a broad ribbon cut from gold cellophane plus a violet seal to finish the center gives the effect of a great golden butterfly.

The illustration shows how easy it now is to pack the once unmanageable jar of jam or plum pudding by simply plumping these products down in the middle of a square of the transparent paper—or two layers of it, one clear and one in color—then gathering the paper and fluffing the edges to form a huge rosette. Food keeps indefinitely when wrapped in this manner.

And so we might go on, from the lowliest item on up to the most elaborate gift, finding new ways in which to make each one as effective as if old Santa himself had dressed them in sheaves of winter sunset and tied them with glittering moonbeams caught on his way down to us.

Folding Screen Gifts

IF YOU ARE at all handy you can with little time and less cost give that friend of yours the kind of screen she has been wanting for ever so long. Three thin, smoothly planed, rectangular boards can be neatly covered in fabric or wallpaper. This material is pasted on and the finished boards then joined by simple hinges. If an antiqued effect is desired on wallpaper or appliqued print, a light waxing on the surface is advisable. Otherwise coat them with a liquid wax glaze. The colorings seem richer and softer when treated either way, and both treatments tend to preserve the screen from stains and scratches.

A Puzzling Party Trick

HERE is a stunt that will baffle your guests. Pass paper and pencil and ask each one to write the figures you dictate, as follows: Put down the number of brothers you have, double that number, add three, multiply by five; now add the number of sisters you have, multiply by ten, add the number of your grandparents still living, subtract 150.

Then say, "Now I am going to tell you a little about your relatives." Ask each one in turn to give you the final answer on his or her paper. As each one complies, you tell him how many living grandparents he has (right hand figure), the number of sisters (middle figure) and brothers (left hand figure). For instance, if some one gives his answer as 420, you say, "You have two sisters, four brothers and no grandparents."

This will probably be a real puzzle to your guests.

Poison

WITH the co… we shall … of carbo… ing. It has beco… running an auto… with closed doors and no … lation can kill a person in ten minutes, but there are other sources of danger from carbon monoxide gas in the home. This deadly gas is colorless and gives no warning odor, hence the many fatalities, especially in winter.

Carbon monoxide gas is produced when any burning fuel does not receive sufficient oxygen to cause complete combustion. There is another gas formed, even with a good supply of oxygen, known as carbonic dioxide, and this is not dangerous unless a person is submerged in it, in which case this will smother the vision, but carbon monoxide is a deadly poison.

Fatal cases of poisoning from carbon monoxide have been due to fires burning low in unventilated rooms—there was an insufficient oxygen supply. Frequent deaths are caused by leaving a gas heater burning low in a closed sleeping room. At first the pressure is high, but toward morning, …noxide

… becomes lowered, … and the gas es… … gas may be in… … in minute doses … will produce the … carbon monoxide … the following are some of the causes: Defective flues, faulty furnaces, leaking gas fixtures, incomplete burning of fuels, imperfect tubings.

Of course if the carbon monoxide caused by these defects is sufficient there will be the acute form of carbon monoxide poisoning with asphyxiation and death.

The dangers of carbon monoxide are so great that householders should look well to the home lighting and heating appliances and provide ample ventilation to offset these dangers.

Kitchen Helps

You will find it quite easy to fill the pepper and salt shakers through the apple corer.

When making sandwiches it will be easier to remove the crusts before the bread is sliced.

You and Your Child

By Irma Morris

Treating Children With Courtesy

"SHE isn't p-r-e-t-t-y," said Cousin Maria to her husband. "No, I'm not p-r-e-t-t-y," retorted the child under discussion, "but I'm s-m-a-r-t."

Would we think of talking about adults in their presence in the same way we continually discuss the children's looks and attributes? "What lovely curls." "You're not near as big as my little girl." "She looks just like her father," etc. Remarks such as these are the rule rather than the exception. And children suffer more than we realize because of them; and in time become horribly self conscious.

The hasty reprimand, the cruel laugh or ridiculing remark, the impatient, "Oh, run along" are all discourtesies that adults frequently indulge in with little children.

I have often wondered how a person of refinement can correct a child at the table, for instance, in the presence of the whole family, or, on the street, surrounded by amused bystanders. Such corrections should always be made in private!

And similarly, how can parents discuss their children's failings with other people, in front of the youngsters? "I've tried and tried to make Mary stand up straight, but just look how round shouldered she is," and "Tom is the most untidy child in the whole world," are merely samples of the remarks one hears on all sides.

How often are a child's questions ignored and his opinions greeted with ridicule or contempt! It is a child's right to express his ideas! When he is mistaken as to facts, by recourse to a reference book, we can show him his errors. His opinions naturally will often be "half baked," but through "give and take" discussion, he will learn a great deal.

Have you ever seen an adult proffer a toy to a baby, and then pull it away just as the young one reached for it? This may be fun for the teaser, but not usually for the child! Unless the little one realizes this is a game, it is not fair play! Many a child has become irritable and bad tempered, because of such treatment.

Do many adults bother to use "please," "thank you," and similar amenities with little children? And yet, don't these same adults usually insist that the little ones be punctilious in these matters?

Most of these discourtesies are due to thoughtlessness. If grown-ups only realized how beautifully children respond to courteous treatment, they would watch their actions and words far more carefully. Children treated with courtesy are more considerate of others, happier, more self-respecting, and much more amenable to reason!

DEATH TOLL IN POISON FOG INCREASES

stuffed the doors and window openings with rags and stayed inside. Others slaughtered the cattle because they were dying anyway, or more level-headed drove their herds to other fields.

The fog lay over Belgium, Holland, France and the British Isles—halting all air service, causing collisions of ships at sea, delaying shipping and darkening the skies over many hundreds of square miles, but it was perhaps thickest in central Belgium, where the Meuse follows its winding path through Namur and Liege to the Rhineland.

The efforts of police to make a complete check on the number of deaths attributed to the fog were vain, but a careful check of the larger towns affected showed more than 50 known dead, with the toll expected to be around sixty.

Opinion among Belgium physicians was that the deaths were due to the heavy fog in the valley. The wet, clinging mist would be fatal in many cases to persons suffering from diseases of the heart, lungs or throat, they held, in rejecting various theories that poisonous gas—such as might escape from shells or war stores—had been responsible.

Many other theories were advanced, however, to dispute the general opinion that the deaths were due to natural causes. One was that poisonous gas had escaped from a zinc factory near Engis, and had been held close to the ground by the blanket of fog. Another theory, advanced by Sir William Arbuthnot Lane, of England, and given credence by some residents at Engis, was that poison arose in the fog from a poisoned sub-soil.

Still another theory advanced at the French academy of sciences was that the dead were victims of a "freezing fog" such as killed 11 persons in Belgium in 1911. This theory fitted in with the general opinion of Belgium doctors inasmuch as the so-called freezing fog is a thick mist that affects persons suffering from throat or lung trouble.

Hoover Lays Plans For Vacation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP—President Hoover is contemplating a long-delayed journey to the southwest when his vacation time comes, after March 4, according to his close friends.

The president would like to try fishing off the Texas coast and might stop off going or coming at the Biloxi, Miss., winter home of his friend, Ernest Lee Jahncke, assistant secretary of the navy, it is said. He also would like to tarry for a time at Kansas City.

The Texas trip has been in the back of his mind since he received the electoral vote of Texas in 1927—the first Republican presidential candidate to carry the state. His interest was revived this week when a delegation from San Antonio invited him to attend an historical Spanish settlement anniversary next March 5, 6 and 7. Hoover informed the donor of the invitation, Mrs. Henry Drought, that he would take the matter under advisement and would go if he could. He has abandoned all hope of getting away from the White House during this session of congress.

Many pressing problems are pending. Hoover considers that unemployment relief legislation as well as the Muscle Shoals bills, demand his attention here, he has informed those who have consulted him. The Wickersham commission's report on prohibition also is due during the winter.

Pair Held In 'Suicide Death'

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 6.—UP—Nelson C. Bowles, 36-year old millionaire, and his pretty ex-stenographer, Irma Loucks, were in the Multnomah county jail tonight awaiting grand jury action on charges of the first degree murder of Bowles' pretty wife.

Mrs. Bowles died of a stab wound inflicted with a saw-toothed bread knife in the apartment of Miss Loucks—which was allegedly provided for her by Bowles—Nov. 12. She had gone to the apartment to ask the pair once more, to give up their alleged clandestine love affair, for the sake of Bowles' two little girls, five and seven years old.

Bowles and Miss Loucks, with the help of Dr. Paul B. Cooper, a relative of Bowles got Mrs. Bowles' body to a private undertaking parlor before police learned of the death, and then claimed that the society matron had committed suicide.

Following several days of investigation, during which all three principals, Bowles, Miss Loucks and Dr. Cooper, were caught in a number of contradictions in their testimony, charges of murder were filed against the pair, and Dr. Cooper was held as a material witness.

MAN MADE LAKE WILL COVER TOWN

LINN CREEK, Mo., Dec. 6.—UP—A few hundred thousand million gallons of murky Osage river water soon will have changed the village of Linn Creek into a section of the bottom of a lake.

Linn Creek won't be there. It will be another town four and a half miles southeast. But it will no longer be Linn Creek. Memories of that small town and its traditions are going to be left as a sacrifice to modern engineering and the villagers, appropriately, are seeking a new name for the new town.

The huge flood gates of the Union Electric Light and Power company's Bagnell dam will be closed in about two months, sealing the doom of the town. Waters of the Osage river will halt in their winding course—stopped by some $32,000,000 worth of cement and steel—and back up over bottomlands to form a lake 120 miles long.

Town Flooded

This water will tumble through spillways to generate electric power for Missouri towns and cities.

Forty feet under the flood will lie the site of this town. Residents, paid for their property, are moving from familiar haunts. There is a clatter of workmen and buildings are coming down.

Some were here who vowed they would remain until the water choked out their last protest against the encouragement of the dam project.

The old courthouse is gone, houses and stores have been torn down, trees have been chopped away and burned so that no debris may float on the vast man-made lake.

New Town

A new rivalry has sprung up with establishment of a new town which rises amidst the same noise of workmen which heralds Linn Creek's destruction. Will Esther has founded a town of his own, Estherville. He is making a bid for the county seat in competition with the new Linn Creek.

Residents here say they wish to rename their town so that they may say: "I was born in Linn Creek. It's there," waving their arm majestically toward the drifting currents of a great lake.

Into it, they say, has gone 500,000 cubic yards of concrete. The lake will extend over 60,000 acres. The shore line will be 1,7500 miles long. The dam will impound 712,000 million gallons of water. There are 3,500 workers employed on the project. A rural population of 1,800 farmers and towns people will be forced from their homes when the great dam locks are swung shut.

August Road Trips Prove Cubs' 'Jinx'

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—UP—August road trips are a "jinx" for the Chicago Cubs. In 1928 the Cubs went east for their final swing holding a six game lead. They lost 13 out of 18 and the pennant along with them.

In 1929 they again flopped near the end but the Pirates flopped harder and pushed the Cubs in. This season the Cubs started east 6½ games to the good and their August road jinx was effective again, the Cubs losing 12 out of 22 games and the pennant.

Railroad Pays $200 For Ideas

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6.—UP—Special cash prizes have just been awarded three Pennsylvania railroad employes for the best suggestions made in the last six months to the railroad's bureau of New Ideas covering improvements in operation and service.

The first prize was $100 and was won by a machinist, the second prize of $50 by a clerk and the third prize of $25 by a crossing watchman.

Oklahoma Fete To Open Cross State Highway

ARDMORE, Okla., Dec. 6.—UP—The progress of land transportation, from the day of the ox cart to the automobile will be depicted in a pageant here tomorrow when three states, Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, celebrate the opening of the first paved highway across this state from the Kansas boundary line to Red river.

The new hard surfaced road, U. S. highway No. 77, will enable motorists to travel over an all-weather route from New York to Los Angeles.

Ancient ox carts, covered wagons, buggies, surreys and early-day model automobiles will be in the parade.

Thousands of persons from all over Oklahoma have gathered for the celebration, which good roads enthusiasts predict will give impetus to a road building program in Oklahoma that will ultimately result in the state being criss-crossed with all-paved highways.

Opening of the new highway marks completion of one of the major projects undertaken by the Oklahoma highway commission, headed by Lew H. Wentz, Ponca City oil millionaire.

Safety At Sea Work Advances

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—UP—The 1929 sea-safety conference and the recent international convention on loadlines were the "most important and effective steps ever taken by maritime nations to promote safety at sea," according to the annual report of Navigation Commissioner A. J. Tyrer.

Tyrer predicted the loadline convention would be presented to the forthcoming session of congress for ratification.

Revealing the steady progress which this country is making to assure safety at sea, the report expressed satisfaction with the "cordial co-operation on the part of steamship owners and masters in the administration of the navigation laws."

The commissioner's report cited statistics revealing strikingly the decline in American tonnage engaged in foreign trade since the high-water mark of 1921. On June 1, 1930, this tonnage amounted to only 3,319,003, a falling off of 7480 gross tons. Tonnage of vessels engaged in coast-wise and Great Lakes trade, on the other hand, increased nearly 5,000,000 gross tons.

Lots Used As Parking Place

CHICAGO, Dec. 6.—UP—Automobiles and the necessity of parking them provide uses for real estate which otherwise might be non-productive of income. The vacant lot, convenient to the business district, offers its owner a chance of income if he will use the ground for parking space until the proper time for building.

For parking space in bad weather, for men who drive to their offices and for theater patrons, multi story garages have been erected on property adjacent to the business district of cities.

A 25-story garage now in operation in New York City is estimated to house as many automobiles as could be parked in 10 square blocks. Detroit has an 11-story garage for more than 1200 cars, and one in Chicago that holds 1000 cars.

The motorist of today who runs out of gas is more than likely to be within a short distance of one of the 350,000 filling stations on vacant lots.

The auto laundry, too, is demanding location. One California concern is planning to start 200 auto laundries.

Fruit and vegetable sellers are now opening drive-in markets. In Los Angeles there are 104 such markets. Dallas, Texas, has several stores built back from the curb to allow for parking space. Oklahoma City and Houston, Tex., have public markets with parking space for automobiles.

Tourist camps, those transient colonies of cabins have created a new use for real estate along main highways.

Mother Drowns Sons In Tub

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 6.—UP—Because she "couldn't bear to see them grow up in ignorance," Mrs. Ida Twaddell, 36, killed her two sons, Kenneth, 3 and Herbert, 6 months, by drowning them in the bathtub.

Another son, Clarence 4, and a daughter, Violet 6, escaped when their mother attempted to kill them in the same way.

Mrs. Twaddell was taken to a hospital for observation.

Quentin Warden Seriously Ill

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 6.—UP—An operation must be undergone by Frank J. Smith, former warden of San Quentin prison if he is to save his life, it was revealed at a hospital where he is lying in a critical condition.

It was said that Smith is critically, but not hopelessly ill.

Palace Museum At Peiping Again Opened To Public

PEIPING, Dec. 6.—UP—Officials of the Palace museum, after more than 18 months of work, have completely renovated and reorganized the museum.

Two new exhibition rooms have been opened, the last of a series, in which the porcelain wares of the Manchu dynasty and the bronzes of the Chou dynasty or shown.

Although more than 100 rooms in the former palaces of the Manchu rulers have now been fitted up as exhibition rooms and filled with art objects, the museum officials estimate that perhaps only five per cent of the treasures owned by the museum are on display.

Renovation of the museum has also meant that Peiping becomes more attractive, and tourists today see the ancient palaces in better condition than they were even when occupied by emperors.

Restoration of the Forbidden City and its museums has been made possible by private gifts from foreign and Chinese philanthropists.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., made a substantial gift to the museum early in 1929. Sir Percival David, and Englishman, also contributed. General William Crozier, U. S. A., retired, provided part of the funds to repair two towers.

City Employes To Aid Unemployed

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 6.—Fifty-five employes of the city tax collector's office have just voted a day's pay to the unemployment fund as a Christmas gesture. The result will realize approximately $400.

Approximately 800 men will be started to work Monday and nearly the same number will begin Thursday. More than 6000 men and women have registered with the citizens unemployment bureau which has given work to 1200 men and 149 women.

Because of the shortage of funds only married men are being given work by the bureau.
